

SITEMAP

The sitemap above shows the hierarchy of the contents of my desired website. Four pages are made with each having different purposes. I planned to make a website that showcases the artworks I made in the past like in photography and some sketches I have been experimenting which all can be seen in one page named P1. For additional content, I decided to make a separate page P2 for another artist including her drawings and paintings. The Forum page is dedicated for the users or viewers' feedback. It will require the use of the database to store the names, email address, and comments of the users about the artworks or the website. Other people's given names and comments are shown in the page except their email addresses for security purposes. Lastly, the About Us page only includes the background or profiles of P1 and P2, and their contact information at the bottom. In summary, the website is only dedicated to showcase the artists' artworks and receive feedbacks from the users.
